Map of Whittier College campus shows developments since 1951 under aggressive leadership of President Paul S. Smith.

The President's Corner

Growth is so dynamic here at Whittier College the campus is bulging at the seams. The acquisition of properties to the North and East of the old campus now makes possible continued construction under the campus master plan. This will create a mall running across the campus from the Student Union to the new Chapel and Fine Arts buildings at the North end of the campus. A new women's dormitory is also currently under construction adjacent to Johnson and Platner Halls. There are now over 1400 students enrolled and the largest and finest faculty ever assembled to teach in a manner afforded only by the privately endowed school.

Since all of you at one time or another have been a part of this growth, your Alumni Board is making available to you shares in a new and different Growth Stock Fund. The prospectus describing this new issue should be in your hands by this writing or shortly thereafter. Your Alumni Board Management urges that you consider this new Fund for immediate investment. When your tax deductible contribution has been received the Board will issue a Stock Certificate suitable for framing.

You continue to be an active and vital part of Whittier College. Through your contributions this institution continues to grow and to give more students the same opportunity of a Christian education, that someone else's contribution gave you.

This edition of The Rock and other alumni publications keep you informed and bring you news of Whittier College, friends and alumni the world over. Your contributions maintain an active Alumni Office on campus which has been a constant help to students who seek part time employment while in school and permanent placement on graduation.

You must remember that Whittier College is not only a physical plant, but also an undying spirit and determination that has been in the hearts of its students, alumni, faculty, and administrators.

May I personally urge your participation so that our drive this year is 100% or 8650 strong. Let your giving be in the true spirit of Whittier College.

A REPORT ON A DECADE

Whittier College, born of faith and little else in the first year of the twentieth century, enters the decade of the nineteen sixties with confidence, having completed the most remarkable ten years of growth in its history under the leadership of its eighth President, Dr. Paul S. Smith. In 1951 an ambitious and inclusive program of college development was begun under President Smith's leadership which has seen the total assets of the college triple in size, from two-and-one-half to seven-and-one-half million dollars. The summer of 1961 will see the physical development of the institution reach a point where the geographic outlines of the new Whittier campus will be apparent to the eye, and the complement of new modern buildings planned for it will reach a measurable degree of fulfillment.

The task of the physical development of Whittier College, experiencing an enrollment increase from 800 students in the fifties to 1400 students in 1960 (the largest in the history of the college), was first of all seen by President Smith as a problem of the proper use of the land available and the acquisition of additional land in order to establish logical campus boundaries and to make it a symmetrical and beautiful unit. This article is devoted to that phase of college development which concerns campus expansion and the addition of new buildings.

Despite the heavy cost of carrying out a long-overdue geographical enlargement of the campus, it was now clearly necessary to accomplish this with dispatch, and the College Board of Trustees approved the project including employment of the firm of landscape architects Cornell, Bridges and Troller, well known Los Angeles company, to make surveys and recommendations. In this connection Fairchild Air Survey Inc. made an aerial survey of the entire campus with supplemental on-ground surveys to finally prepare a topographical map in one-foot contours of the entire campus and of adjacent areas necessary for acquisition as sites for new buildings essential to a growing institution. The aerial survey was completed at an approximate cost of ten thousand dollars.

The College proceeded to acquire as many parcels of land as were available between Philadelphia and Olive Streets, so that North Campus could be established, and so that the main face of the campus fronting on Painter Avenue would one day be exhibited as an architecturally harmonious one all the way from Earlham to Olive.

To date, a half million dollars has been expended in the purchase of twenty-two different parcels of land, a program of acquisition which is now about seventy per cent completed. These properties are located as follows: nine on East Philadelphia, six on Olive Drive, four on Berkeley Way and three on Stanford Way. It is a matter of satisfaction that all these were purchased by negotiation without the necessity of using the institution's right of legal condemnation. After the College became the owner of the last remaining privately owned property on Berkeley Way, the street was abandoned by the City of Whittier and it became an integral part of the campus in 1957. The acquisition of all property in the first block and a half on East Philadelphia has literally made this street a campus arterial as well as establishing the south boundary for North Campus. For years the campus was tied together by a circular drive which served as an access from Painter to the front of Founders and back again. The southern half of this drive was obliterated when the new Campus Inn and Student Union was built in 1958. With the extensive enlargement of the campus to the north a wholly new campus thoroughfare became necessary. This will be accomplished by the construction of the Poet Promenade, a seventy-foot walkway connecting the Campus Inn-Student Union on the south campus to the buildings in Peasley Center on North Campus. The Promenade will be a letter S in shape, landscaped and well lit by night to form a beautiful mall, unifying the new campus as once the circle drive did for the old.

The first building in the new program of the fifties—the Administrative Annex—was the first addition to the North Campus, located there in 1956. The building, which was given to the college by Mr. John D. Gregg, late President of Rose Hills Memorial Park and a trustee of the College, is valued at $150,000. It added new administrative facilities of the college as well as permitting the discontinuance of the general college office in old Founders, the installation of a new campus automatic central telephone system, the centralization of general office facilities and the location there of a newly developed Admissions office.

In the same year (1956) construction was started on the Susan and Clifford Johnson Residence for Women, built at a cost of $500,000 and housing 100 in a comfortable modern residence designed by the college architect, William H. Harrison, F.A.I.A. This new residence began the Berkeley-Stanford Way quadrangle of women's residences which is now being carried one more step toward completion with a second hall described later in this article. (Mrs. Johnson was Whittier's first professor of languages, and her husband served as a trustee from 1902 to 1946, the longest term in the College's history.)

The "face lifting" along Painter Avenue, where Whittier shows its outer campus face to the world, was next enthusiastically started with the demolition of the old wooden Campus Inn and the construction of the $800,000 Walter Friar Dexter Student Center. The building includes the Campus Inn—of striking architectural merit, seating 700 at tables, and also designed by Mr. Harrison—and the Student Union, housing the bookstore, student fountain, student offices and alumni office. The building is named for the fifth president of the college who served from 1923 to 1934.

In 1958 the college also continued the Painter Avenue building program with the construction of the John Stauffer Lecture-Laboratory, which now forms the south wing of the Lou Henry Hoover Memorial Hall. The building was built through the generous interest of Dr. John Stauffer, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Stauffer Chemical Company, and a trustee of the College, at a cost of $175,000. It is the location not only of a handsome lecture hall but of the new Social Studies Laboratory which has been developed to facilitate teaching of the Whittier College Integrated Courses.

These four buildings were completed before the end of the fifties, and by the time the new decade was a few months old construction had already been started on three additional buildings, bringing the total expenditure for construction in a period of some five years to a round figure of $2,600,000.

With a start of construction on the Whittier College Memorial Chapel on a site until recently occupied by Broadoaks School—the highest rise of land on the North Campus—the new North Campus can be said to have come properly into being.

The steeply rising roof of the Chapel will be clearly visible from many points on campus, symbolizing the unity of spiritual and intellectual growth for which Whittier College has always stood.

With the re-location of Broadoaks School on Philadelphia, space was provided for the complex of buildings between Philadelphia and Olive on the North Campus which are to be known at the Peasley Religion Center. (Mrs. Ella Wilcox Peasley, of Long Beach, a generous benefactor of the college, and long-time member of its Board of Trustees, died in 1959.) An "agonizing" re-appraisal of the campus master plan forced the decision that Broadoaks had to be re-located despite the heavy expense involved since in no other way could unit planning of North Campus be achieved to the marked advantage not only of Broadoaks but also to other structures planned for this newest area of the campus.

In this new group of buildings—scheduled for completion in the summer of 1961—are the Memorial Chapel, Arnold Hall, and the music building. Total construction costs of these buildings will be approximately $600,000.

The new Memorial Chapel represents many years of effort toward raising funds on the part of the Lancer Society, which originated the project, on the part of the alumni, and of generous trustees and college benefactors.

With a seating capacity of 325 (the college continues to hold general convocations at nearby First Friends Church which will seat the entire student body), the chapel will provide a place for chapel services held weekly, as well as for concerts, weddings and religious conferences. Additional space in the chapel provides for the choir and the chaplain, as well as for reception rooms and a bride's chamber. A bridal and reflection garden is adjacent to these quarters.

Among the unique architectural features which should be noted are the great window on the south wall rising the full height of the arch and providing for future memorial glass.

Adjoining the chapel to the east, space is provided for the later addition of a large patio across which an arcade will join the new music center to the chapel. The patio will also provide a site for a future carillon tower.

Sharing the high point of the North Campus, the music building will feature Arnold Hall, named in honor of the first woman Quaker minister in the California Yearly Meeting, and mother of the donor, recently deceased Mr. J. Clem Arnold of Whittier, well known Southern California newspaperman.

The hall will provide for 400 in audience and will be of multi-purpose use with folding partitions. Arnold Hall is expected to be used for choir rehearsals, concerts, lectures and for religious conferences which are held at Whittier College during the year. The hall will be acoustically treated (as will all buildings on North Campus), and will have sliding glass doors opening on the patio.

The main Music Building will be a two-story structure containing classrooms, studios, practice rooms, offices, storage, and a Peasley Music Library with listening facilities for the study of music. All rooms in the building will have specially constructed walls and ceilings to make them completely sound proof. The building will provide amply for the music faculty of ten at the college.

In contrast to the strong vertical lines of the chapel, the music building will emphasize horizontal elements of contemporary design. Diverco Constructors, Inc., are the contractors for the North Campus buildings.

Contributing richly to the resident life of Whittier

College will be the new Beverly M. Stauffer Residence Hall for Women now under construction on Stanford Way. The building will provide residence for 100 women (eventually 150) and complete the Berkeley-Stanford Way quadrangle of womens' residences begun with the construction of Johnson Hall in 1956.

The new hall will be named in honor of Beverly M. Stauffer (Mrs. John Stauffer), of Los Angeles and Palm Springs, the principal donor, and will be built at a total cost of some $500,000.

Mrs. Stauffer is Vice President of the Board of Directors of the John Stauffer Foundation, Los Angeles. Active in civic and philanthropic interests, Mrs. Stauffer is also an Honorary Life Member of the Guild of the Memorial Hospital of Glendale. It is through Mrs. Stauffer's deep interest in the progress of Whittier College that this beautiful new residence will soon be a reality. Contractors for the building are Kemp Brothers, Inc., of Whittier.

An almost historic significance attaches to the Chapel-Music building and the Beverly Stauffer residence hall: the former marks a break-through to Olive Drive and the latter to Stanford Way, to establish these two streets as the new campus confines and bring to realization one of the important objectives of the college's over-all plan.

When the new chapel is completed, the music and chimes of a new carillon will sound from North Campus.

Through the generosity of Dr. La Motte T. Cohu, Chairman of the Board of Cohu Electronics and a member of the Board of Trustees of the College, and his brother, Mr. Wallace Cohu, the College has been presented with a Schulmerich Coronation Carillon.

The new electronic carillon—which is used at many colleges and churches and is also the instrument in the National Evening Hymn Memorial Carillon at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier—consists of 25 miniature bell units of bronze bell metal which are struck by metal hammers producing exact true bell tones.

The new carillon will be played from a special keyboard at the organ console, and selector switches permit the bells to be heard within the building alone, from the outside alone, or in both places at once. In addition, automatic equipment will permit a periodic campus playing of selected music.

A pipe organ, to be specially built and installed in the new Whittier College Memorial Chapel, is the gift of an anonymous college benefactor.

Specifications have been made for an organ appropriate to the chapel and one which will be used by students in the Department of Music. The lack of the facility of a good organ on the college campus has severely limited organ instruction by forcing the use of off-campus instruments which in many instances were not adequate for good practice experience. It is estimated that a year will be required to build the organ after an order has been given for its installation.

A Conn Artists Model Electronic Organ—which can be used alternately in chapel or Arnold Hall—comes to the College as the gift of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who was presented with the instrument by the Republican National Committee at the close of its national convention last July in Chicago. The organ was originally given to the Republican National Committee by the Conn Organ Company of Elkhart, Indiana. It will provide a fine utility instrument for the Chapel and Arnold Hall.

The College expects to have under construction early in 1961 a new dormitory for men to be known as the Roy E. Campbell Residence Hall and to be located immediately west of Wanberg Hall. This new residential facility will consist of the United States Entomological Laboratory on campus completely remodelled to house thirty men and a new unit built as an integral part of the same building to house sixty men for a total capacity of ninety in the building.

For many years Mr. Roy E. Campbell was senior entomologist in the government laboratory which carried on research in citrus and vegetable diseases. In this capacity he made warm friends of many members of the college staff and the work of the laboratory was often in close alliance with appropriate departments of the College. Because of Mr. Campbell's long and continuing interest in the welfare of Whittier College, its Board of Trustees voted unanimously to place his name on the new dormitory for men. Target date for completion of this building is September 1, 1961.

Throughout its entire existence Whittier College has used improvised library quarters. The institution has never had a library building, one specifically designed and built for this purpose with the many features in it to give modern and up-to-date library service comparable to the equipment and service to be found in the academic program of the College generally. Although Mendenhall building has provided excellent "temporary" quarters for the past two decades, the past five years have made it increasingly clear that the College must now vigorously move forward to secure a new library building with adequate reading room facilities for a minimum student body of 1500. It must also provide adequate space for a first-rate and rapidly increasing collection of books spilling off already over-filled stacks, and for study cubicles, seminar rooms, and faculty offices.

College officials and members of its Board of Trustees have been mindful of the central importance of a library building to a college located in the dynamic atmosphere of higher education in California. Accordingly the College Board has authorized a study of modern library buildings at institutions comparable to Whittier as well as the making of elevations of a library building for the Whittier campus on the basis of tentative plans. The master plan of the campus developed by the College's advisory firm of landscape architects locates the new library in the approximate area of Redwood Building and also occupying a measurable portion of the area lying between Redwood Building and Philadelphia Street. In order to facilitate early planning for the library, four residences on Berkeley Way—formerly used by the College for auxiliary operations—have been either razed or removed. This affords a regal site for a great library building as Whittier prepares herself for service through the sixties and the rest of the century and beyond—a service to California and to the nation.

This view of the future also points up the acute need for a new chemistry building at Whittier which will also include the allied sciences now so poorly housed so that all may be brought together in a fine modern building befitting the reputation of Whittier for preparing distinguished scientists. It is noteworthy that Whittier College holds second place for institutions of its type in Southern California for the number of undergraduates it has trained in science who subsequently took the doctorate in this field. The College is understandably proud of this record and desires not only to hold it but to extend it in an age in which science also has become of paramount importance to both our welfare and to our survival.

The master plan of the campus places the new chemistry and related science building on Hadley Field. This emphasizes the need for the early completion of Memorial Field in Worsham Canyon so that all the athletic activities of the College may be carried out there and thus open the way to a new utilization of historic Hadley Field.

At the time Whittier College was established the Quaker founders laid out a much more modest campus than did the Baptists, the Congregationalists, or the Presbyterians in their respective college foundings in Southern California at the turn of the century. This was probably the case because they had less money and a much smaller constituency to draw upon than did their competitive sectarian college founders. Nonetheless, over the years, each has had to wrestle with problems common to all and with others peculiar to each. A besetting one of the latter kind at Whittier has been the need for Lebensraum; indeed a lack of space for campus expansion has almost continuously handicapped the institution's growth although this has only been generally recognized in recent years.

Yet all this may be deemed a blessing in disguise. Minimum commitments in the past left the College free in the fifties to accept a wholly new geographical concept for its campus and to plan one with much of the freedom enjoyed by those who start from scratch; the campus building boom in the same ten year period permitted the uniform use of the modified Modern-Mediterranean style of architecture to give the campus a happy feeling of architectural unity and up-to-date-ness. At the same time Founders Hall remains as a cherished reminder that Whittier was founded over a half century ago and that it has deep roots in the past.

health education:

Fitness in an Atomic Age

by Elmer L. Johnson, Ed.D.

We are living in a generation of the tallest, heaviest, and most nearly disease-free youth in all history, yet we are subtly being victimized by automation, mechanization, specialization, standardization, urbanization, and materialism. We are living in a nation which has made gigantic technical strides during the past half century. Whether or not we are aware of these developments and their impact upon the lives and fortunes of every American man, woman or child, we are nevertheless being daily influenced by the technology of our time. Many pertinent observations point up the need for better programs in health education, physical education, and recreation. In March 19, 1954 U.S. News and World Report editorialized on "What's Wrong with American Youth," by stating:

"In terms of muscle and ability to do jobs requiring physical strength, the average American youth today tend to be more alert mentally . . . while they may have strong minds, they appear to have more weak bodies."

An editorial, "A Coddled U.S.A." in Sports Illustrated, August 15, 1955, had this to say:

"But after a child has been vaccinated, inoculated, and trained to accept chlorinated water as a normal beverage, little is done to encourage muscular development which is the birthright, and in cruder times resulted from what came naturally. The playpen and plastic toy keep him sanitarily quiescent. The puny trees of most cities in suburban backyards are seldom fit for him to climb. Their stand-ins, the pipe rack, 'jungle bars' of the playground, are neither challenging or especially useful to his muscular growth. The school bus gives him portal to portal service, making it unnecessary for him to even run hard not to be late for school . . . If he isn't good enough to make the school team, he is not likely to play hard at anything . . ."

Then, in "The Report That Shocked the President" in Sports Illustrated, August 15, 1955, it was stated:

"There is a problem in the United States today, one which goes far deeper and has more serious implications for the future of the nation than many which haunt headlines daily. It is the problem of physical fitness of our U.S. youngsters."

We are living in an age where priorities place "machines above men," "inactivity over action," and "speed over moderate travel." Work is frowned upon as a hang-over of serfdom and those who seem to enjoy self-energizing habits are classed as eccentric. Our whole system of urbanized and mechanized life is largely for the comfort and convenience of adults. We are saddling the youth of today with a middle-aged method of living in which they have few chances of self-determination and self-decision and spontaneous methods of expending in a regular, wholesome, and safe manner their young human energies. As a nation we have been criticized as being a nation lacking in national purpose. Some political analysts have suggested that our purpose is really "to achieve physical comfort." If this is true, we are in trouble.

In the area of health education, certain developments are significant. A survey of our current consumption of our gross national products show a rather marked increase in the use of tobacco, liquor, sedatives, stimulants, tranquilizers, and cosmetics as compared to the consumption of the more basic items such as food, clothing and shelter. Our buying habits reflect our national

Dr. Elmer L. Johnson, professor of physical education and chairman of the department came to Whittier College in 1947.

He is head coach of the swimming team and has coached teams since 1950. He has developed a number of record-holding swimmers and a SCIAC champion in 1955.

He was president of the California Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation in 1958-59.

A graduate of Moorhead State Teachers College, Dr. Johnson received his Masters degree at the University of Minnesota and the Doctor of Education degree from the University of Southern California.

neurosis and pattern of values. Dr. Steinhaus, a noted health educator at George Williams College in Chicago, aptly describes our dilemma:

"We are advised to wake up with caffeine, keep going on nicotine, keep regular with serutan, kill pain with aspirin, stay alive with geritol, drown our worries with alcohol, grow slender with effortless Ella . . . write exams with benzedrine, quiet tensions with tranquilizers, dispel nagging backache with kidney pills, go to sleep on barbiturates, start the new day with an alkalizer to get rid of yesterday's brown taste to make room for today's."

Can anyone doubt the need for a program of health education in our schools and colleges today?

Inactivity has become such an acute problem that it is recognized as one of the new factors in the production of disease. Inactivity leads to orthopedic, internal and recently, psychosomatic diseases. These as a group are called hypokinetic diseases. Some people disparage exercise. They rationalize that muscular function has become superfluous in our way of living and loafing. Yet one fact is frequently ignored and this is the fact that the heart is a muscle and therefore cannot be safely put to rest and made strong enough to cope with the emergencies which may impinge upon us from time to time. The incidence of heart disease in our male population points to the need for regular systematic exercise as part of a normal pattern of living. The American Medical Association's reports stress the importance of moderate daily exercise in a well balanced life. Supporting evidence indicates the contribution of exercise to weight control and better respiratory and circulatory function. Psychiatrists similarly point to the value of exercise as a means of improving mental health.

When the Russians launched Sputnik, America was seriously challenged as a world power. This event set in motion a chain of events which had implications for health and physical education. In order to find more time for science and mathematics in our school program, one of the recommendations recently made by the Citizen's Advisory Committee of California was to reduce our physical education requirement here in California.

Recent attempts to reduce the physical education requirement at the college level has occurred at various institutions. In a few cases the physical education requirement has been modified or limited thus placing physical education on an elective basis. This is unfortunate in so far as many students who probably need physical activity would tend to refrain from electing physical education as part of their college program. Under the pressure of increased academic standards now being imposed upon college students today, it appears logical that students should be required to schedule some form of physical activity on a systematic basis which they would normally tend to avoid if placed in a voluntary program. The two or three hours per week devoted to physical education on most college campuses today is not a disproportionate amount of time to spend in an organized program of physical education.

Increasing college enrollments will in the future place excessive demands upon existing staffs and facilities of many colleges. To eliminate physical education merely on the basis of expediency appears to be educationally unsound. Each institution will need to carefully appraise its own educational program by studying the interests and needs of its student. In the light of current developments at the international level there appears to be a greater need for health and fitness if we are to keep pace with Russia. The Soviets havenot sacrificed their physical education program for an accelerated program in science but have rather moved ahead along both fronts. Industrial workers in Russia take an "exercise break" in mid morning in place of the traditional American "coffee break." Adults are encouraged to belong to a sports club where it is possible to compete in sports on a life long basis. The Russian athlete is no better than the American counterpart, but the physical fitness program is about five years ahead of ours. The Soviets have 31 million engaged in track and field, 60 million in gymnastics, 80 million in soccer and 90 million playing volleyball. These are significant facts if we consider that Russia's main purpose is world domination. In the light of these conditions physical education should not be eliminated from our educational programs.

At Whittier College we have operated within the framework of our general education program. Physical education can and does make a contribution to the physical, social, and spiritual development of college students beyond the professional training he receives in college.

Ideally, the educated man should possess certain other attributes: He should know and practice good health habits, be physically fit in order to perform daily tasks without undue stress and fatigue, and be skilled enough in one or more sports in order to find expression and enjoyment in some type of leisure-time recreational activity.

Above and beyond our basic requirements, students have the opportunity to participate in our men's and women's intramural program and our inter-collegiate athletic program. This latter program is designed for the gifted. Many values not attained in our regular physical education program can be achieved through this program, which directly contributes to our general education program here at Whittier College. In the years ahead, it is hoped that we can live up to our responsibilities in contributing to the objectives of the College through a broad program which meets the needs of all students.

an art festival

by Karin Conly '55

last month with the upstairs lounge of the Dexter Student Center providing a pleasant open-house atmosphere. Over 200 found time to browse among the displays and be audience to such demonstrations as Bonsai planting, on-the-spot caricatures, a sculpture demonstration, and fashion showings.

Ann D. Chandler and Helen B. Smith were co-chairmen of the event which was a benefit for the Marjorie E. Gregg Student Assistance Fund.

One of the special events, fashion shows featuring women's clothes from the Betty Lou of California shop, was given twice during the day. Mrs. William Nighswonger '57, coordinated the styles worn by students from the Home Economics Department at Whittier.

Not only were refreshments served during the course of the nine-hour festival, but High Tea was served at the customary hour, and a Kaffeeklatch was available in the evening. Mrs. Donald Freeman '54 and Mrs. Warren Marsh '55 were co-chairmen for these interesting refreshments. They were assisted by Mrs. Harry White '47, Mrs. Tony Pierno '56, and Mrs. Morris Cusick '40.

Active Cap 'n Gowners on campus were available throughout the day to lend a helping hand where needed. Their chairman is Jan McClure '61, with whom the girls worked to publicize the event.

Among the artists from the community who demonstrated in many media was a Whittier graduate, Mrs. Rachel K. Ulrey '41, who exhibited water color landscapes. She is presently curator at the Whittier Art Gallery and membership chairman of the local Art Association. She is especially interested in teaching art to children.

Mr. H. L. Mason thought of his role at the festival as "more as an entertainer than as a display artist . . . caricature taken out of its political function always is." For Mr. Mason devoted his time to drawing caricatures or pencil portraits. His background includes ten years of editorial cartooning for various newspapers!

Mrs. Caroline Hooke demonstrated in a pastel medium using wood as a background for color and texture.

Another local artist, Mrs. Jo Van Cleave, showed a "Guatamala Bird" in mixed media; "Watertower" in transparent watercolor; and a watercolor and ink drawing. "All of my work is done on location, no matter what the subject" she says. Needless to say her art has taken her to Europe, Mexico, and the states.

Demonstrating in realistic and abstract was Mrs. Daisy D. Wisegarver; she showed her local and coastal scenery pictures.

From the faculty, Miss Elnora Laughlin displayed her paintings done in tempera technique (learned while studying in Florence, Italy) and in lacquer (experimental work done while in Mexico). Mr. Carleton Ball, a campus instructor, and several of his students demonstrated "throwing a bowl on a wheel," other ceramics, and serigraphy. Mrs. Frances Schroeder, home economics teacher, displayed her mosaic work.

Other prominent community contributors included Mrs. Pat Heard '50, a Poet alumnus. Her work in serigraph technique is "fine arts done on a silk screen," which sells locally and along the coast.

Ernest Lacy, a Whittierite since 1949, Mrs. Margaret May, and Mrs. Florence Davis (a Whittier Artist of the Month) also contributed.

John Leeper, a Los Angeles artist, often paints landscapes of the same place—each time feeling new and stimulating experiences about it. His paintings were viewed, as were those of Mrs. Dorothy H. Rowen, who brought samples of her contemporary-impressionistic work. One named "The Cloister" is an award winner.

Another outstanding feature presented in the afternoon was a lecture-demonstration given by Mr. Khan Komai of Temple City (whose son is a frosh class member). His knowledge of the art of bonsai planting is endless.

A Globes and Maps display were offered by Whittierite, John R. Cauffman '45; various posters sold in quantity; an interesting interior decorating display using custom-designed furniture was set up by Mrs. Mary Muncy; and original "one-of-a-kind" jewelry was shown by Mr. Don Walker.

Mrs. Willoughby Anderson, a local artist, displayed her works in stone sculpture which is a new field for her. She works out-doors with "soft pumice stone, tools-at-hand, and the neighbor kids looking on"—and produces what her children fondly label "mother's monsters"!

A sculpture display by a local couple, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. French, provided many subjects to view—some "his" and some "hers." He also demonstrated the press and mold technique for interested on-lookers. Some of his works were used in an Esther Williams movie.

Books were also included and several professors were on hand to autograph copies of their latest works. They were Dr. James M. Merrill, whose first book The Rebel Shore deals with sea power during the Civil War; Gerald Patton's book African Detour which is based around his student tour to that country; and Dr. Gladys Stevenson who has written Introduction To Foods and Nutrition. Other books on display written by campus personnel included, Build on the Rock by Dr. C. Milo Connick; History of YMCA Physical Education by Dr. Elmer L. Johnson; General International Organization by Dr. J. W. Robinson; and Dr. Betty Unterberger's American Siberian Expedition. 1918-1920.

1959-60 14TH ANNUAL ALUMNI FUND REPORT

General Chairman Beryl E. Notthoff '35 reported that Whittier College alumni during the Fourteenth Annual Alumni Fund Campaign contributed a total of $23,233.00. During the drive from September 1, 1959 to August 31, 1960, the effectiveness of solicitation of alumni for gifts shows that 13.4% or 1130 participated out of a total alumni body of 8650. The average gift was $20.58. $9,650.00 of the $23,233.00 total alumni contributions was contributed through the President's Office.

Nationally, the average percentage of alumni participation was 20.9% with an average gift of $32.86 in 1958-59. Last year 1121 Whittier College alumni contributed $14,684.00.

A personal solicitation program was inaugurated this year and proved to be an effective method in the campaign. The Telethon was again attempted within the Southern California area with moderate success. A class agents program is planned for the 15th Annual Fund the first of the year, following its inauguration two years ago.

Alumni President Norfleet (Cal) Callicott '45 urges alumni to participate in the Fund program. He stressed the importance of alumni financial support to Whittier College. He noted that the Alumni Fund is the solid base on which is built a program of gifts and bequests from other individuals, foundations and corporations.

As a gauge for helping others determine what might be Whittier's share of their alumnus's "givable dollars," Callicott suggested the following allocations:

Religion.....	30%
Education.....	30%
Community Services.....	30%
Other.....	10%

Bonham

Aubrey Bonham, one of the nation's most successful small college basketball coaches, is starting his 22nd season in Wardman Gymnasium. Bonham has experienced only one losing year in his 21 seasons at Whittier College, and it's a good bet that the veteran coach will come up with another winning team for casaba fans on the Quaker campus.

The Poet cage crew returned to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics national championships in Kansas City for the second straight year last season even though a fine University of Redlands quintet whipped Whittier for the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference crown after the Poets had won the conference title three years in a row.

The Poets downed the Bulldogs in the finals of the NAIA District 3 playoffs to earn the trip. Bonham and his cagers are hoping to recapture the SCIAC championship this season and would like nothing better than a third trip to Missouri.

Six boys are missing from the 14-man squad that rang up an outstanding 23-9 record last season. Starters Herm Mason, Carroll Hooks, and Bill Hollinger and forwards Chuck Kenley, Bob Sanford, and Bill Donner have departed via the graduation route. However, starters Bill Johnston and Paul Collier return along with forward Jim McLaughlin, center Tom Houston, and guards Bill Roberson (the boy who came off the bench to can eight points in the final six minutes to lump Redlands in the playoff), Ken Reed, and Joe Hernandez.

Mason, a 6-6 center who was accorded a spot on the NAIA All-American team last season, leaves quite a gap, but lanky Hank Ashbaugh, a 6-8 transfer from Fullerton Junior College, is expected to fill the breach and produce his share of points and rebounds to the Whittier cause.

McLaughlin has been elected team captain by his mates and is ticketed for a starting forward position departed by Hooks. Hooks was also an NAIA All-American, a two-time All-SCIAC choice, and one of the finest defensive players in Poet history according to Bonham.

The starting five now shapes up with McLaughlin (6-1) and Johnston (6-4) at the forwards, Ashbaugh at center, and Roberson (5-11) and Collier (5-9) at the guards although there are plenty of eager challengers waiting on the sidelines.

Bonham's secret weapon will probably be depth on the bench, for he has six member's of last year's championship freshman team that lost only three games. They are forwards Steve Hayes, Ian Desborough, Rich Lindcourt, and Dale Miller and guards Tom Freese and Jack Nahmias. Also on hand are Tom Cunningham, another transfer from Fullerton, and Harry Johnson, a center who played at Citrus Junior College.

Charlie Hall '50 recently joined the football coaching staff at the University of Southern California and is a colleague of former Poet mentor Don Coryell. Hall is the third Poet alum to be named to the staff of a major university in the last couple of years. Walt Hackett '50 and Wayne "Tank" Harris '55 are tutoring the Baylor University Bears.

Charlie McMurtry '59, last season's all-conference tackle, is anchoring the middle of the defensive line for the Buffalo Bills of the American Football League and doing a bangup job. The big 300-pounder can be seen from time to time on the AFL Television Game of the Week. His big number "73" is continually harassing opposing quarterbacks.

FIVE POETS MAKE SCIAC TEAM

Five Whittier College Poets were named to the All-SCIAC first and second teams in football this season. End Ken Gregory, guard and co-captain Ed Bain, tackle Dennis McMaster, and fullback John Sherman made the first eleven, and center John McAllister was named to the second team. McMaster was the only sophomore elected to the first team. Gregory, Bain, and McAllister are seniors; Sherman is a junior.

Four in a Row

POET GRIDDERS

The Whittier College Poets swallowed a bitter pill when they dropped a 19-7 decision to the University of Redlands in the season football finale, but coach John Godfrey's charges did manage to cut a sweet slice of their fourth straight Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference championship.

Whittier, Redlands, and Occidental all wound up the SCIAC schedule with identical 4-1 won-lost records. The Poets squeezed by Oxy 13-12, the Tigers upset Redlands 7-0, and the Bulldogs in turn overthrew the Poets to throw the conference into a three-way deadlock for first place.

Redlands gained sweet revenge with its victory before a huge Homecoming crowd on the Bulldog turf, for it was the Poets who had relegated the Bulldogs to second place the last three seasons.

A fantastic string of 17 straight SCIAC games without a defeat was also broken. The Poets hadn't lost a conference gridiron battle since the same Bulldogs turned the trick back in 1956.

Godfrey, in his first year as head coach at Poetville, started the season with one of the slimmest squads in recent years. Only 26 grididders turned out for the first practice back in September.

Before the opening game with the University of San Diego the soft-spoken ex-Washington State football captain picked up five more boys, and the roster remained at a threadbare 31 throughout the season.

Despite the handicap of not having enough players to hold a weekly head-knocking scrimmage session, Godfrey and his able assistants, Bob Douglas and Max Fields '58, molded the Poets into a smooth-working unit that ran up four straight victories before bowing to powerful Cal Poly of Pomona, 33-13.

The Fighting Quakers downed the University of San Diego in the opener, 20-6, followed with a 14-8 win over the University of California at Santa Barbara, traveled to Davis to shutout the Cal Aggies 14-0, and returned to friendly Hadley Field to clobber Pepperdine 28-0.

Following its initial loss to Cal Poly the Whittier squad embarked on its conference voyage with the narrow win over Oxy and proceeded to exterminate Caltech (56-12), Pomona (25-13), and Claremont-Mudd (40-0) before running into coach Ted Runner's revved-up Redlands crew.

Potent quarterback Bill Vail

At the start of the season even the most optimistic Poet fan would have been skeptical at predicting an 8-2 season for Whittier, but Godfrey blended the talents of 11 returning lettermen, four capable junior college transfers, and seven promising sophomores into a championship caliber unit.

Junior quarterback Billy Vail, who languished in the shadow of Little All-American Gary Campbell last season, took over the generalship of the Godfrey pro-type T formation offense and spearheaded the vaunted Whittier passing attack with the assistance of sophomore signal-caller Rich Harrison.

Vail hurled the pigskin skyward a total of 181 times during the season and 102 times the ball found its mark in the hands of a Poet receiver. Harrison, playing spasmodically because of injuries and the tremendous success of Vail, still managed to complete 32 of 65 passes for 619 yards.

On the end of more than 50 per cent of these aerials was end Ken Gregory, who established himself as the greatest pass receiver in the annals of small college football. The sticky-fingered, quick-stepping senior latched onto 74 passes to set a new National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics record and gained 1018 yards. The old mark was 48 receptions—26 less than Gregory's new standard. Gregory, who is eyeing a professional grid career, also set an NAIA record when he caught 13 in one game against Caltech.

Sophomore Stan Sanders also turned in a fine first year on the varsity with 25 receptions for 377 yards, and along with Vail and Harrison, should give the Poets the nucleus of another outstanding passing offense next season.

During the latter part of the season the Whittier running game began to show life with fullback John "The Tank" Sherman and halfbacks Greg Risko, Dick Skinner, Brent McDowell, and co-captain Frank Piani leading the way.

Sherman was the leading rusher as he carried the ball 115 times and gained 734 yards for an average of 6.4 yards per crack. "The Tank" was also the team's leading scorer with 68 points—including 11 touchdowns and one two-point conversion.

Risko finished the season with 422 yards in 94 carries for a 4.5 average. He tallied three touchdowns, booted 13 extra points, and picked up four points on two two-point conversions. Skinner gobbled up 234 yards in 54 tries for a 4.3 mark. Sherman, Risko, and Skinner will all be back in the fold next year. McDowell and Piani are seniors.

As soon as the Poets relinquished possession of the ball, Godfrey shot his "Japanese Bandits" into the fray. Safetyman Seitaro Miyano, halfback Rick Kunishima, end Ted Uyeda, and guard Dave Okura were bulwarks on defense. Miyano and Okura transferred from East Los Angeles and Santa Ana junior colleges respectively, Kunishima was up from the frosh, and Uyeda spent his third year as a regular on the Whittier flank. By the way, don't forget Yukio Hamada, the team's official statistician!

Co-captain Ed Bain, who moved from tackle to guard in mid-season, proved to be the leader in the middle of the Poet line. Big Ed received plenty of help from returning lettermen Jim McAllister at center and Mike Quinn at guard and from junior college transfers Jim Knapp (Orange Coast) at guard and Joel Holmberg (East Los Angeles) at tackle.

The real surprise of the season was the rapid improvement of the seven sophomores: Harrison, Sanders, Skinner, Kunishima, tackles Dennis McMaster and Dick Peter, and center Ron Cobine.

The performances of these boys plus the improvement shown by returning squadmen Mike Oldham and Bob Salmond at the tackle positions enabled the Poets to progress from their pre-season mediocre rating to a team that enjoyed a highly successful season.

One might say the outlook for the future at Poetville is bright. Twenty of the 31 squad members will return next year. From this group Godfrey could name a starting lineup consisting of Sanders and Oldham at ends, McMaster and Peter at tackles, Quinn and Knapp at guards, Cobine at center, and Vail, Risko, Skinner, and Sherman in the backfield—and this would be a pretty fair country football team that could hold its own against SCIAC opponents.

The Poet mentor is hoping to corral several football "horses" from the hugh herd of California junior college prospects. If Godfrey is able to roundup six or eight top notch junior college boys to go with freshman coach Max McCartney's fine crop of Poetbabes, don't be surprised if the Poets are at the top of the conference ladder again next season for the fifth straight time.
